

Life Without Limits (formerly Big Sky) is a national effort of United Cerebral Palsy (UCP) to create a new vision of the future for people with disabilities. Evolving from a series of visioning sessions with experts in the fields of disability policy and services, the map illustrates the future and reflects the six basic elements that guide the organization's central mission of advancing the individuality, productivity and full citizenship of people with disabilities:

- Navigating the World Across Generations
- Meaningful Employment
- Ease of Use (Universal Design/Access)
- Agile Potent Networks
- Community Leadership – Government will Follow
- Believable Hope

People with disabilities face serious challenges in our society, and the Institute for the Future (IFTF) map is designed to enable groups to develop strategies, initiatives, programs and public policy to address these challenges.
